

THE FRONT

The God we know, and worship is a victorious God. Muslims call Him Allah. Jews refer to Him as YHWH, Jehovah, Ha-shem, and Adonai. Christ-affirming believers refer to Him as Father, Heavenly Father, Father in Heaven, Jesus and Lord. Non-Christ affirming people refer to their God (or Gods) as Vishnu, Brahma, Darmakaya, Waheguru, or Ik Onkar. We happen to believe that the name of God is YAHAVAH, but all names aside, the one thing we suggest is not that all Gods are the same nor that they are even all correct but that we all understand God imperfectly and that from a position of heart-felt mercy for all people, we treat one another with respect, kindness and with unconditional love.

Welcome to Volume 1 of The Front, our online connection with everyone who chooses to show mercy toward all people, regardless of denominational or traditional differences. In the face of historical divisions, religious wars, hatred, bigotry, mistreatment and death, we seek to unite with others in peace, love, and understanding—as far as this is humanly possible.

Our position is pretty simple - when it comes to religious beliefs, we strive to let all people believe as they are inclined and to relate to them through eyes of mercy - which we maintain all versions of God seem to endorse. We promote mercy in the face of nature, nurture, socio-economic factors, educational levels, intelligence, racial and gender issues, preconditioning from circumstance, from suffering and trials. We suggest that maintaining a merciful heart toward people from all walks of is in harmony with whatever God is involved and that it is a good thing, a loving thing, a human thing to endorse. We only part ways with people (physically) when an individual's God promotes merciless attitudes and actions - toward anyone - ever.

We have no roles, membership, demands for money, allegiance or participation. We have two requirements to belong to a United Front - to practice a merciful mindset toward all people and to refrain from proselyting to others – in any unsolicited way, shape or form. Be confident in your beliefs – its encouraged – but please respect the positions of others and do not use this platform to dissuade, denigrate or dismiss the heart-felt faith in others. We maintain that God knows the hearts of all of His/Her/It's creations and leave that realm for Him to change.

We welcome all souls to the Front. If inclined, please share our website and next meeting in the desert with those you love. Obviously, it's meetshawnthebaptist.com

See you in the desert.
